

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTION.

THE following pages show results of an effort made by the writer to ascertain the nature of what might be called the literature of his native town,—how the thoughts or affairs of those who have been born or resident in it have found an expression on printed pages. These results have been a surprise, a pleasure, and a satisfaction to him, and he trusts that they will be to others,—a surprise from the number and often the rarity of the works, which it is a pleasure to enumerate; and a satisfaction, joined with this pleasure, that their almost unexceptional characteristic is that of religious faithfulness, of patriotism, of help to charity, to education, or to good citizenship, and that there is so little that the authors would wish to efface. This general estimate, after a review, seems fairly and sufficiently to annote the collection.

And this material does not make a merely local story, for it touches wider than local subjects, and also shows to some extent, representatively, what an old New England town—neither obscure nor pre-eminent—thought, did, witnessed, or produced, and through two and a half centuries has had put on many printed pages. It is not a mere dull list of things nearly passed away and forgotten, but an interesting story of growth from small beginnings to all we now enjoy; and one that illustrates how, on wider sphere and scale, far more widely spread populations have also been growing. It becomes, indeed, to a considerable extent an outline history of the intellectual and material life of the times and of the people. It shows how through much of the Colonial period the chief expression of thought was by the ministry, and religious, with little of the amusing, but something of the imaginative, and more of the historical; how the Revolution associated much writing with a place; how in the earlier period of the nation a wider variety of thought and of addresses was developed; how, for fifty years, the fervid emotions of the Fourth of July Oration were proclaimed, as in many of the greater and minor towns; how changing theological opinions grew; how political and educational and benevolent affairs became more prominent; how the press flourished; how general business enterprise expanded; and how literature increased in scope, and often in value.

We find, thus, early religious works by divines eminent in their time, printed in the old home they had left, or by the rude presses of their new country. We find early American poetry by Johnson, by Oakes, by Anne Bradstreet, — not the sweetest, but what we had. We find that the once engrossing subject of witchcraft was treated by a minister, a Charlestown boy, in a book that now brings more than its weight in gold. We find some of the marked events celebrated as they passed, some of the well-known inhabitants commemorated when they died. Then comes the long Bunker Hill story, productive of a paper almost to every patriot engaged, and the battle not yet ended in print. Then the town resettled after war, and the printing-press established, — the first newspaper, first pamphlet, first volume, first copper-plate, first octavo, first American map of Bunker Hill, — all firsts, until the earlier first that bibliographers sometimes discover. Meanwhile, and afterwards, appear continuous legislative acts on various affairs, and, in time, municipal publications, — at first small, but finally growing to bulk, to multiplicity, and to nearly utter extinction. Then follows a wider and wider range of subjects, as the record shows.

One reason, and not a minor one, for the production of this work is a renewal of what the writer has advocated for certain libraries with which he has been associated, the claim of the importance of placing and preserving on their shelves all proper aids and illustrations to Local History pertinent to the position or purposes of the collection. And he offers this work as a suggestion — not a model — of something that seems still to be needed for many towns. The acquisition of what such lists may contain need not be, even now, excessively difficult; for although when attempted by a single person it may be one of those efforts nearly enough impossible to be exciting and interesting, when undertaken by a hundred persons, each of whom supplies even a single book or pamphlet, a large aggregate can be formed by small individual sacrifice or contribution. Pamphlets that, scattered separately may be of moderate interest or value, often become, when put together, like the signatures of a complete and important book. And signatures like these are every year becoming more scarce. Through the country the omnivorous junk-dealer has drawn his net, and the waste-basket received its victims. And yet the old closets, drawers, or boxes may still yield things desired.

If some one in each town forms a List of Publications related to it, a great index of thought, biography, and history would be made.

Nearly all the works mentioned on these pages are to be found in public or corporate libraries; no one of which, however, contains more than a portion. A great deal is thus accessible to those who search for information. To such collections the writer is much indebted.

This book was begun early in 1879, and a considerable portion written in that year, but articles to be mentioned were so continually found that the writer hesitated to print. The type was, however, set in the spring of 1880, and then a European tour caused a suspension of the work. Meanwhile the Memorial History of Boston, including Charlestown, was announced, and the writer curtailed the notes for the latter part of his book. Its divisions explain its plan: first, compositions by founders of the town who did not remain long in it; then monographs by natives or longer residents while colonial relations remained with Great Britain, chronologically arranged, and passages in various books. Then the Bunker Hill material, with references to over four hundred publications, besides newspapers, some important articles only in which it was practicable to mention. Finally, the more copious matter related to the town, after the Revolution, chronologically arranged to show what appeared year by year. A note on the thirtieth page explains this portion, that altogether contains about a thousand titles, besides a large number mentioned in previously printed lists to which reference is made. In addition is a list of publications printed in the town during fifty years from the establishment of the press there in 1786, and, in the Personal Index, reference to about four hundred and fifty memorial or biographical articles.

The collection of titles proved no easy affair. They belong to publications often so rare that only a single copy could be found; accounts of some must be taken from descriptions not always full; and some are so rare that, as far as the writer has learned, no copies have been for many a year owned in the town to which they are related. Records of not a few were scattered, and only to be obtained by search, and not a few also were unrecorded. No public or corporate library, as already stated, appears to possess more than a fraction of them. Even the town itself does not possess a complete collection of its own municipal publications, and such a one of the personal memorials described hereafter has probably never been formed. All the publications described that appeared during the lives of their authors have been, perhaps without exception, made public by their act or consent, and the writer trusts that he has not passed the line that should protect private affairs. The titles of many minor works, chiefly later, are abridged, but sufficiently given. Some very long titles are thus treated. The full matter would be unnecessary, and be impracticably bulky. All, it is believed, are directly related to the town or to an inhabitant.

Notwithstanding the number of names and titles and much labor, omissions will, very likely, be found. If the last title for such a list was awaited, it could hardly ever be printed. Accuracy, also, has been sought, but evidence has been met that it is not attained in all cases, and that reference to the word is to be made with modesty. Statements will occur, as, for example, on a title-page (p. 89), that mentions an Address by Mr. Webster, at Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775, but does not tell us how he managed the performance on that interesting occasion. Or, two notes (pp. 25, 32) show how a couple of ardent Frenchmen had a desperate grapple with some of our proper names. There are also some other statements, not quoted on these pages, that appear more to need alteration.

With a desire to help in preserving the names and the words of many good people who have gone, the present book appears as a guide; a help to its own enlargement; a memorial of life, of thought, and of history in Charlestown; and a contribution to the commemoration of its two hundred and fiftieth birthday.

Nov. 10, 1880.

THE BEGINNING.

A PENINSULA a mile long, nearly surrounded by broad, still waters, varied by five low hills, and overgrown by forests of oaks, except where clearings had recently been made towards the outer and larger end, and inland some square miles of wild lands; a few poor, cheerless cottages and a Governor's house in the clearings; a few small settlements hardly within hail; north and west and south a vast wilderness, more mysterious than are now the recesses of the Dark Continent, and eastward three thousand miles of rough and stormy sea, only to be crossed in cramped and comfortless vessels; dear old homes, much of kindred, and almost all of civilization and Christian fellowship beyond that sea; a few hundred people, worn, sick, or sorely tried, endeavoring to call and make this place home and country.

That is where the works of these Charlestown people began.

Small indeed were the opportunities of literature, and yet on pages not few — plain, or even rude perhaps, like nature there — the founders impressed what they have stamped on more than them and that peninsula. For they were no illiterate emigrants and frontier adventurers. With human infirmities, perhaps, but with grand purpose and strong religious principle, certainly, they showed their quality from the start, whether on the roughly printed leaf, or on the stern land they and their associates conquered for God and for freedom.

Thirty years later the view grew better.

The little village was covering more of the peninsula, and farms were scattered inland; some look of the snug comfort and the quaintness of Lincolnshire and Yorkshire country appeared; neighborly settlements were growing along the coast and among the thick forests around. Yet there was plain fare and plenty of hard work for almost every one, and the old home was scarcely easier to reach; the number of the people was a little greater, health better, material wealth very moderate; but just as resolute purpose, a sturdy support of a pious and learned ministry, and a College and a printing-press in the next town,—a Charlestown boy graduated at the one, and his little book printed at the other, while two of the ministers were publishing in London.

Slow growth, perhaps, followed, and no overcrowding of the press by the townspeople. But let us look at their work in a literary way, and learn what came of it when the town they planted had fairly taken root. Crops are not apt to grow fast in New England soils, but they are apt to prove worth harvesting.

BRIGDEN, Zechariah. An Almanac of the Celestial Motions for this present Year of the Christian Æra 1659. By Zech: Brigden, Astrophil. Samuel Green, Cambridge, 1659
This is probably the earliest American book by a C. author.

SHEPARD, Rev. Thos. (of Cambridge, N. E.) "THE | PARABLE | OF THE | Ten Virgins | Opened and Applied | Being the Substance of divers | SERMONS |." Published by "Jonathan Mitchell, Minister at Cambridge," and "Tho. Shepard, Son to the Reverend Author, now Minister at Charles-Town in NEW ENGLAND." Folio, 2 pts. in 1 vol., pp. 8 + 240 + 203 + 5. London, 1660

— The same. pp. 6 + 232 + 190 + 5. London, 1695

Also in folio Lond. 1659, 1695; in 8° 2 vols. 1797; in 12° Aberdeen, 1838.

Authorship, or publication, by natives, or those for years residents, of the town, seems to have begun in 1659. Mr. Allen, minister of C. 1639-51, had returned to England and was settled in Norwich, d. 1673. Mr. Brigden (C. 1639), who was one of the earliest graduates of Harvard Col. (1657), and probably was the author of the Almanac, died 1662. Mr. Shepard was minister of C. 1659-77.

NOWELL, Alexander. An Almanack of Celestial Motions for the year of the Christian Epoch 1665. By Alex. Nowell φλόμουσος. Sm. 8°. Samuel Green, Cambridge, 1665

The author was a son of Elder Increase Nowell, born in C. ? died in 1672, and is said to have published several almanacs. The only copy of this one seen by the writer is now in the National Library, Washington.

SHEPARD, Rev. Thos. 8. MAP. The Seat of War in N. E. by an American Volunteer, with the Marches of the several Corps sent by the Colonies towards Boston, with the Attack on B. H. R. Sayer and J. Bennett, London, Sept. 2, 1775. "It is more curious than valuable." — R. F. See Boston Public Library, Cent'l Graphic.
9. MAP. "Plan of the Battle on B.'s H. Fought on the 17th of June, 1775. By an Officer on the spot. London, Printed for R. Sayer and J. Bennett, No. 53, in Fleet St., as the Act directs, 27 Nov., 1775." Sheet with text, Burgoyne's Letter to L'd Stanley. Reduced in Moore's Ballad Hist.
10. MONTRESOR, see Page No. 11.
11. PAGE. "A Plan of the Action at Bunker's Hill," etc., by "Lieut. Page of the Engineers, who acted as Aide-de-Camp to General Howe in that Action. N. B. The Ground Plan is from an Actual Survey by Captain Montresor." London, 1776 or 7. Also, on copper for Frothingham's Siege, 1849,* and Centennial, 1875. See Stedman (below), F.'s Battle Field, 1876, pp. 5-6, 13. This is "much the best" plan. See 15 (below). Reduced in several publications. * See also Page's Plan of Boston.
12. PLAN of the Town of Boston, with the Attack on Bunker's Hill in the Peninsula of Charlestown. For T. Robson, Newcastle upon Tyne. With a curious map of C. See fac-similes in Pulsifer, Osgood (C. only), and Wheildon (above).
13. PENNSYLVANIA Magazine, June, 1775, "A New Plan of Boston Harbour from an Actual Survey." Engraved for Penn. Mag. C. Lownes, sc.
14. RIVINGTON'S Gazetteer, New York, Aug. 3, 1775. A rude plan shown by printer's rules, reproduced in Frothingham's "Siege," 397, and Hist. Mag., 390.
15. SMITH, C. "A Plan of the Action at Breed's Hill * on the 17th of June, 1775 Between the American Forces and the British Troops. * Erroneously called Bunker's Hill." "D. Martin, Sculpt." Plate I. in "The American War from 1775 to 1783." Published by C. Smith, New York, 1797.

This rare plan is finely engraved, and a reduced but careful copy of 11 (Page), substituting "American" for "Rebel," (where the latter occurs in 11,) and making a few other changes in lettering. This work contains six other fine maps of Revolutionary battles, and when complete is excessively rare.
16. SMITH, Geo. G. "Sketch of the Battle of B. H. by a British Officer," Boston, June 17, 1843. 12 × 19 in. Based on 4, but with alterations.
17. STEDMAN, C. Hist. Am. War, London, 1794. No. 11 (Page's) map reprinted with altered title.

18. STILES, Rev. E., (Newport). A rude sketch in his Diary (1st plan made of the Action?), engraved in Hist. Mag. 393.

TOWN PERIOD.

THE History of the town, previous to this period, has been fully written by Mr. Frothingham (see 1845-49), and Dr. Budington (see 1842-45). Its Church Records (see 1880) have been reproduced in print. Its experiences during June 1775, and immediately afterwards, have been described fully by Mr. Frothingham (1849), and by Dr. Ellis (1843). Dr. Bartlett gave, with ample and interesting notes, an account of its affairs to 1814. Some of these notes, with others from rare published works or hitherto unprinted records, that appear along the following dates, present a concise yet rather minute review of the leading incidents of the history of the town to the present time, and various works mentioned show a great deal already in print about its thoughts, doings, societies and individual inhabitants — a mass of material that if reproduced would make a single work impracticably large, and treating too much, perhaps, of subjects of moderate importance.

The events of June 1775 terminated the Colonial period, and within a year, an action by the people began a new period in the history of the place, when, May 28, 1776, in Town Meeting they "Voted Unanimously, That it is the mind of the Inhabitants, that our Representatives be advised, — That if the Continental Congress should, (for the safety of the Colonies,) declare them Independent of the Kingdom of Great Britain, they will in that case, solemnly engage with their lives and fortunes, to support them in that measure." Also, "Voted Unanimously, that the town clerk serve our Representatives with a copy of this vote for their direction." And thus Charlestown ratified the great Declaration thirty-seven days before it was proclaimed "and published to the world."

After the destruction of the town within the peninsula, "many of the former inhabitants returned" from the exile into which they had been forced, and (continued Dr. Bartlett), "commenced according to their respective means, to repair their waste places. A few of the number were able to erect convenient dwellings, whilst others, like their hardy predecessors, were only covered with temporary shelters." The Parish Records state that in "1777 * * the returning inhabitants in their then distressed situations, did make it one of their first objects to provide a house to re-establish the public worship of God in this town." They "found no other or better place in which to worship than an old block-house left by the British troops * * in 1776." This stood upon "Town Hill," and "was appropriated as a school-room, a meeting-house, and for other necessary purposes." "The first administration of the Lord's Supper [said the venerable pastor, Thomas Prentice] in Charlestown since the destruction by the cruelest British Enemies, was Nov. 8, 1778, with great solemnity and fulness of members beyond expectation," (Church Record). In the block-house, wrote Dr. Bartlett, "Sept. 4, 1780, * * uninfluenced by political dissensions, we gave our first suffrages for a chief magistrate and legislators, under the Constitution of this Commonwealth." There were 48 votes.

Through discouragement and trial, through suffering and earnest effort, the town once more arose, along its "main street," and lesser ways around the parts of the peninsula towards Boston, around its old market square, then so suggestive of the market places in pleasant English country villages from which not a few ancestors of its people came, and on and around the old Town Hill, that from its history and its associations, well deserves a title sometime given it, truly describing it an "American Shrine."

Little help had the people from Congress, lottery, or other public sources then feeble in means, but much, it seems, from their own good arms, and hearts, and heads. They had to work out their loss, £156,960, 18s. 8d.,—a large sum at that period. And out they worked. In 1785 five hundred and fifty persons had one hundred and fifty-one buildings, wrote Dr. Bartlett. In 1783 a handsome meeting house had been built on "Town Hill." It was 72 feet long, 52 wide, had "an elegant steeple," "a bell of 1300 weight presented by Messrs. Champion, Dickason and Burgis, merchants of London," (three times recast, now in the tower), and a clock by Hon. Thomas Russell, (Dr. B.). Various manufactures that had flourished before 1775, were revived, "particularly * * of pot and pearl ashes," vessels, "rum, leather in all its branches, silver, tin, brass, and pewter," and still later, other kinds, and general trade were added. (Morse, 1797.)

Meanwhile the town's affairs were getting into print, and the account of publications about them, is continued. There does not appear to have been much to record before 1785, when the Printing Press was set up in Charlestown. More than one hundred and seventy books or pamphlets, some large, some small, all now rare, that came from it within fifty years, are hereafter mentioned. There seems little evidence that any considerable amount of literary treasure had been destroyed in the great conflagration. Ways of the world and the modern paper-mill have made more havoc among publications related to the town than did the "cruelest British."

MONOGRAPHS, AND LEGISLATIVE ACTS AND RESOLVES.

Works by residents, published before their stay in the town, are given under the first mentioned; published after, under the last, or under memorials at their deaths. Works published before or after a brief residence, and magazine or other articles not separately published, are, generally, not enumerated. Later editions, or Acts, are mentioned under the first described; serial publications at years of their commencement. The titles of many minor works are too long for insertion and are abbreviated. The size of all the following works is octavo unless otherwise specified.

Abbreviations. C. = Charlestown; ch. = chapter; Leg. = Legislature; Rep. Report; rep. = reprinted; sec. = section.

"AN ACT [Mass. Leg. March 9] for incorporating certain Persons for the Purpose of building a Bridge over Charles River between Boston and C., and supporting the same during the Term of forty Years." (See 1792).

The Corporators were John Hancock, Thos. Russell, Nath'l Gorham, Jas. Swan, and Eben Parsons. The bridge, a great work in its time. — "considered as the greatest" yet undertaken in the country, — was 1503 ft. long, 43 ft. wide; had 75 piers, 40 lamps, and a draw 30 ft wide. (B.) Its opening, June 17th, 1786, was "the first celebration of this anniversary" (Warren's B. H., 1877), conducted "with the greatest splendor and festivity" (B.). It was the beginning of communication by bridge with the peninsula. A programme, now very rare, relates to the occasion. See Financial results, Report, 1827.

THACHER, Rev. Peter, (Brattle St., Boston). Sermon at the Funeral of Joshua Paine, Jun., C., Feb. 29, 1788, pp. 21. Boston, 1788

Mr. Paine, eldest son of Rev. Joshua, Sturbridge, Worcester Co., in Nov. 1786, was unanimously called to C. ch., was settled Jan. 10, 1787, first min. after rebuilding of the town, and died in the ministry Feb. 27, 1788, æ 25. "His sermons exhibited the Piety and Christianity of his Heart, and the exalted and social virtues of his mind, secured the Esteem and Friendship of all his acquaintance, and presented an agreeable prospect of his usefulness in the Ministry. He was sincerely lamented by all who knew him, and especially by the flock committed to his charge. His remains were decently and respectfully entomb'd at y^e expense of the Parish March 1, 1788." — Church Records.

The terminus of this once important work was in C. The first officers were men prominent in Boston and C. "The science of Civil Engineering was almost unknown to any one in this part of the country, and * * many difficulties" were met with "for the want of requisite scientific knowledge." The survey was completed Aug. 2, 1794; the Canal, from the Charles to the Merrimac, was navigable in 1803. The income had to be used for renewals, alterations, etc., "and no dividend could be or was declared until Feb. 1, 1819." One hundred assessments were laid, Jan. 1794 to Sept. 1, 1819, making each share cost, with interest, \$1,455, and the whole work \$1,164,200. Twenty-five dividends were paid, the last Jan. 30, 1843, averaging 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ % per cent per year. In 1830 the Packet Boat left C. "near the B. Hill Tavern," at 8 A. M., and reached Chelmsford at 3 P. M. It was an hour by stage thence to Lowell. The railroad ruined the business. (See Eddy, 1843.)

A PRAYER and SERMON by Rev. J. Morse, C. Dec. 31, 1799, on the Death of George Washington, with a Sketch of his Life; and Proceedings of the Town by Josiah Bartlett, Esq. pp. 46 + 36 + W.'s Farewell Address 24. Charlestown, 1800

— The same, reprinted, pp. 44 + 36. London, 1800

This was one of the few among the numerous Washington eulogies reprinted in England. The Life, etc. were also reprinted in Baltimore, 1800, and sumptuously in 4°, New York, 1865. The 1st (C.) edition was printed at the expense of the town, each family of which was furnished with a copy. It is now rare, — very few copies could be found in C. Charlestown, Dec. 31, 1799, "in but seventeen days from the" death of Washington, "was the first town in Massachusetts, and I believe in the United States, that instituted publick funeral honours" on his death. (Dr. B.) "The procession consisted of the male inhabitants, from seven years of age and upwards," 620 persons, including the Magistrates, lodge of Free-Masons, and three military "Companies in uniform. The stores and shops were shut; the flags on the vessels and on shore were displayed half staff high, and minute guns were fired from Breed's hill. The meeting house was shrouded in black." The procession moved "by a solemn knell, and agonizing peals of cannon to the house of prayer." For a full account see B. H. Aurora, Nov. 10, 1838.

AN ACT [Mass. Leg., March 4] "to empower the Selectmen of the Towns of Boston and C., to increase the Number of Engine-Men in said Towns and for other Purposes" (see Gen. Act, Feb. 7, 1786).

— [Do. June 17, ch. 26.] "authorizing the United States to purchase a certain Tract of Land in C. for a Navy Yard."

Add'l Act, June 18, 1825, ch. 8. Special Laws, vol. 2, p. 506. Ceding Jurisdiction of certain lands in C. to U. S., ch. 195, 1862, and ch. 35, 1867; 249, 1868. The B. H. Aurora (Oct. 27 and Nov. 3, 1838) contains the Town Record with the full instructions by a committee "in the name of the town," to Aaron Putnam, Esq., "who was chosen to repair to the Seat of Government, respecting the Navy and Dockyard," April, 1800.

These show that a proposed site at Noddle's Island would be "almost as injurious to this town as a second conflagration. * * * If [they add] the situation we propose is as good as any other, it may not be amiss to invite . . . attention to our unequalled sufferings in the late revolutionary war; the embarrassments we still experience in consequence . . . the want of success in our early application for some compensation * * * the labor * * by which we * * are now enabled by 24 years' industrious application * * to sustain a decent rank with our fellow citizens-at large." While the town endeavored to secure the yard, the land-owners asked $73,200 for what sworn appraisers valued at $15,180, — John Harris holding his lot at over eleven times the appraisal. (Town Rec. above.) "Between 40 and 50 acres" were ceded to the U. S. by the Leg., "valued by a Jury at $37,280." (Dr. B.) A Marine Hospital was erected in 1803. A noble Dry Dock, built of granite, was opened June, 1833. It cost $670,083. (Barber.) See Baldwin, 1834. Many large and substantial buildings have at various dates been added.

In this work, and two publications mentioned 1811, 1816, — all now very scarce, — will be found three illustrative folding plates and descriptions of the Prison. They state that this structure, with "about 5 acres of ground, including extensive flats," cost "about $170,000. * * Competent judges pronounce" it "to be one of the strongest and best prisons in the world." It was "built of hewn stone" during 1804-5, in "a pleasant and healthful situation, commanding an extensive, rich, and variegated prospect." The main building was 200 ft. long, 28 to 44 wide, and 4 and 5 stories high. The first floor was formed by "a tier of hewn stone, 9 feet long, and 20 inches thick." The work yard was 375 by 260 feet, the building containing workshops, kitchen, chapel, etc., was of brick, 227 by 25 feet, with 2 stories and a basement. Dec. 12, 1805, the first two convicts were received, and by end of 1805, thirty-four. Dr. Bartlett (1814) wrote of the Canal, Navy Yard, and Prison, "we cherish a belief that these * * will be so estimated and conducted, as to answer the public expectations, and promote the happiness of the town."

The Preface states that "some late occurrences having attracted the attention of many respectable citizens of this town to the state of morals among the children and youth, it was found that extraordinary means were necessary to guard the rising generation." Of the Soc., Dr. Morse (1st Ch.), was chairman; Dea. D. Goodwin (Baptist), Treas.; Rev. Mr. Collier (Baptist), Rev. A. Kneeland (Univ.), Deacons J. Carter, T. Miller, M. Hall, A. Tufts, and 18 others, Standing Committee. Names of 99 members, showing all classes and beliefs, are given. See Circular Letter of this Soc., Panoplist, Dec., 1813. Similar Societies were formed in Newburyport and other towns.

MORSE, Rev. J. "An Appeal to the Public, on the Controversy respecting the Revolution in Harvard College, and the Events which have followed it; occasioned by the use which has been made of certain Complaints and Accusations of Miss Hannah Adams, against the Author." pp. 192. Charlestown, 1814

This long, intricate, and unhappy controversy, treated in the above works, included a charge of literary piracy by Miss A. against Dr. M., and severe censure of him, together with some of the theological strife of the times. "The charge was met at last, as it should have been at first, by an examination and comparison of the two works." (Histories of N. E.) This showed "the astounding fact, that Miss Adams * * as an author was herself guilty of a real and gross violation of the rights of another author; she having copied verbatim, or with only colorable alterations, nearly one third of her whole work, 160 out of 513 pages, from Dr. Ramsay's History of the American Revolution." (S. E. Morse, 1867, in Sprague's Life of Dr. M., N. Y., 1874, p. 277.) This fact appeared, and the attack on Dr. M. ended.

Read to an Assembly of Citizens at the opening of Washington Hall, Nov. 16, 1813, and afterwards prepared, with notes, for the Massachusetts Historical Society." Printed in its Collections, Series II. vol. ii. pp. 163-84 (1814).

Also reprinted with the same type (without change, even in a few evident errors), with a title-page added, worded as above to "1813," and a preface of six lines; Inscribed to the Citizens of C. 8°. pp. 24. John Eliot, Boston, 1814. This pamphlet is now rare, especially in C. A recent Sale Catalogue shows that a dealer holds one at $10. Also reprint 1880 (larger paper).

Washington Hall was a "handsome, convenient" brick building, 53 feet long, 29 wide, 3 stories high, on Main St., near the Square, "with a handsome rear entrance from Town Hill." The property, held in 50 shares, subscribed by 34 persons, cost $6,250. The W. H. Association (annual pay't $5) had there newspapers, books, etc. (2d story). "An elegant druggist's store" was in the first (long occupied by Messrs. Kidder and White, and 1880 by Mr. Stowell). A hall was in the third, and in the yard "an office about 15 ft. square," occupied by Jas. Frothingham (Dr. B.), the artist, who became one of the most prominent of C., some of whose works are now to be found there. Dr. Bartlett, chiefly in his notes, gives a full Review of the institutions, etc., of the Town in 1814. It had 3 militia companies, and the Artillery (formed 1786), Warren Phalanx, and Light Infantry (1804), that long lived; 3 churches (see above); 6 attorneys at law; 2 doctors; 7 school-teachers; 2 reading societies; and a population of about 5,000. The value of the annual manufactures was about a million and a quarter of dollars, chiefly of bricks, morocco and cordage.

URSULINE CONVENT, Mount Benedict.

This Institution (Order of St. Ursula, established 1536) was founded in 1820 by Drs. Matignon and Cheverus, "with funds given by a native citizen of Boston." The community removed to C. 1826, and occupied a farm-house at the foot of Mt. B. once a commanding eminence, — "until the main building (of brick, two stories high) on its summit was finished," 1827. (See Report below.) It was a well-known Seminary. Certain reports about it having been circulated, it was burned by a mob at night, Aug. 11, 1834. The event occasioned great excitement; and a number of (now rare) publications, for which see below, and 1835, 1837, 1842, 1847, 1852-55, 1870, 1877.

REPORT of St. Francis de Sales Church Debt Society from June 1, 1879, to Jan. 1, 1880, with a long list of Subscribers. pp. 32. [Boston, 1880]

Describes a successful effort to reduce a debt incurred in building the very large, substantial, and handsome church of St. Francis de Sales, on Bunker Hill.

RECORDS of the First Church in Charlestown, Mass., 1632-1789. Prepared by Jas. F. Hunnewell, and printed under his care and for him, by David Clapp & Son. Royal quarto. 6 plates. pp. (8) + 168 + xii + (2 + 2) to xxvii. Boston, 1880

With a description of the five volumes containing the Records, — the contents of that kept by the ministers entirely reproduced; an Appendix on the topography and early history of the church; and six pages in fac-simile, showing the styles of writing in the original MS. About two thirds of the above matter appeared in the N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, 1869-79, Vols. XXIII. to XXXIII. This complete edition, 62 copies, all of one size.

HISTORY of the Harvard Church in Charlestown, 1815-1879 [by Henry H. Edes] with Services at the Ordination of Mr. Pitt Dillingham, Oct. 4, 1876, etc. 8°. pp. 294. Three plates, 2 plans of pews (with names of occupants). Privately Printed, Boston, 1879

Issued in 1880. Also 50 copies, 4° (with a map of C., 1818, and 1 pl. add'l.). List of Publications of Rev. Jas. Walker, D. D., pp. 9, and do. of Rev. G. E. Ellis, D. GUNNISON, E. Norman. C. 1837, died 1880. Author of poems in Scribner's Monthly, Christian at Work, and other publications.

OSGOOD, Rev. Samuel, D. D. C., 1812, died N. Y., 1880. This distinguished clergyman, settled in Nashua, Providence, and New York City, made very large contributions to literature, for which see Aillibone, 1465.

BUDINGTON, William Ives, D. D. In Memoriam. Services and Addresses at his funeral, Clinton Av. Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 2, 1879, resolutions, etc. pp. 40. New York, 1880

Minister of the First Ch., 1840-54. None among the many honored men who have ministered in C. could have been more beloved. Charitable towards all, learned, eloquent, chivalrous, and courteous, devoted to the highest requirements of his sacred office, this true Christian gentleman and minister died while these pages were being prepared, and the writer sadly records the last title that tells of his intimate and nearly life-long friend.

HUNNEWELL, James. Journal of the Voyage of the "Missionary Packet," Boston to Honolulu, 1826. With (2) Maps, and (6) plates, and a Memoir (by J. F. H.). Royal quarto. pp. xxvii + (1) + 77. James F. Hunnewell's Privately Printed Work, No. VIII. 100 copies. John Wilson & Son, University Press. Charlestown, 1880

The daily record of a remarkable voyage of nine months, in a vessel that measured 80½ tons. The North Atlantic, the seas near Cape Horn, and the Straits of Magellan, were traversed during wintry weather. The Memoir tells its own story of courage, enterprise, and integrity.

The above Personal Index contains references to about a dozen "Lives," in volumes, eighty memorial pamphlets, and three hundred and sixty notices of various lengths, or about four hundred and fifty articles describing about two hundred and forty persons, natives or residents of Charlestown. This large amount of material already printed seems to render unnecessary a biographical dictionary of the town, that the writer, several years ago, designed. For the present, at least, he prints only one memoir described under the date 1880. Although the above list is large, it can probably be increased. Many obituary notices, not included, are to be found in newspapers, especially in the Bunker-Hill Aurora. Articles of this sort are often hurriedly written, and more careful performances are desirable, but the former are, in many cases, the only accounts that exist. No complete collection has, probably, ever been made of the memorial pamphlets. That which is the least incomplete has only been formed by much research. Even explorations among the greater antiquities of various nations created within the past thousand years hardly impress one more with a sense of the perishable nature of human things, than do these monuments of some of the persons most notable in their time among their fellow townspeople. They belong to a valuable class of local literature that deserves better preservation than it has been apt to obtain, and that is wanted and welcomed in not a few libraries.

The Antiquities of a Town, that are its historical monuments, are interesting subjects for description, and it would be pleasant, when writing this list of literary works, to add a chapter about Charlestown, such as might be written about some other places. But neither the modes nor the means of the earlier people created any considerable object that could survive the great fire of 1776. Many stones or tombs in the Burial Ground, indeed, escaped destruction, and the inscriptions they bear may be published, the writer has been informed. An article on the public or private structures of more recent times would be, if correct, of some value in showing how American ways have grown to expression in one of the most prominent of the arts,—that of building,—but it is not necessary to make it so personal or limited as to apply it to any one town.

ADDITIONAL ITEMS. 1702, Hale, Rev. J., "Modest Inquiry," reprinted, Boston, 1768. 1842, Service Book for (Unitarian) Sunday Schools. 6th ed. 12^o. pp. 28. Boston, 1842. Pamphlets, page 92, 1830, Phinney, and 1832, Richardson, should have appeared with the town matter.
